09/27/2007 12:24 PM Guidelive.com

/ Movies

Begin an Exciting Career!

9am - 12 noon - 3301 West Royal Lane - Irving

What to do in Dallas/Fort Worth, Texas Thursday, September 27, 2007

Go

Search Listings

Go

Search Stories

Home

The Arts

Books

Performing Arts

Visual Arts

Attractions

Kids & Family

Sports & Recreation

Movies

Music & Nightclubs

Reviews

Restaurants

Television

TV Listings

Video Games

Visitors' Guide

Columnists

Video

On The Town

GuideLive.com/extra

About GuideLive

Blog: Movies

Blog: Music

Blog: Eats

Bloa: TV

Blog: Texas Pages

Blog: On the Town Blog: Over the Top

Blog: Shopping Buzz

Blog: Punchbutton

Newsletters

Submit an Event

Search Archives

Home >> Movies >> Gypsy Caravan

Gypsy Caravan

Local Showtimes

Select a neighborhood for showtimes:

All Locations

Movie Review Grade B+

Watch the trailer

By COLIN COVERT / McClatchy Newspapers

The music documentary Gypsy Caravan is an eyeopener, an ear-opener and, most important, a heartopener.

The film follows five Roma bands from Macedonia, Romania, India and Spain as they tour the United States in a raucous, irresistible whirlwind of drums, brass and fiddles.

Recording them on their sixweek excursion, with side trips to their homes, director Jasmine Dellal dispels many stereotypes about the gypsy lifestyle, props up a couple others and creates an honest and affectionate portrait of a much misunderstood

The film is in the vein of The Buena Vista Social Club, with fly-on-the-wall camera work, on-the-run interviews and

Make This Your Home Page Get GuideLive Newsletters

Advertising

Shadow Distribution "Queen of the Gypsies" Esma

Redzepova, a humanitarian who adopted 47 children and was twice nominated for a Nobel Peace Prize

Movie Info

Guide Pick

STARRING

Esma Redzepova, Antonio El Pipa Flemenco Ensemble, Johnny Depp, Maharaja, Taraf de Haidouks

DIRECTOR

Jasmine Dellal

RATING

Not Rated suitable for all audiences

RUN TIME

110 minutes

LINKS

Web site

Guidelive.com 09/27/2007 12:24 PM

long, infectious swaths of concert footage.

The film leavens the performers' often painful stories with absurd humor.

A befuddled policeman arrives when the musicians hook fish out of a municipal art center's courtyard pool, and the ever-worried American stage manager ceaselessly urges the artists to get to the auditorium on time.

Appropriately for an Indo-European people scattered over half the globe, a diverse cross-section of music is included.

There's Fanfare Ciocarlia, the funky 11-man Romanian brass band that plays supersonic gypsy, klezmer and Turkish rave-ups. You may have heard its rendition of "Born to be Wild" at the end of Borat. The band's four CDs have been so successful they have brought electricity to their impoverished village.

"Queen of the Gypsies" Esma Redzepova, a humanitarian who adopted 47 children and was twice nominated for a Nobel Peace Prize, sings captivating Macedonian tunes. The raga and dance group Maharaja, resplendent in northwest Indian finery, features Sayari Sapera, a specialty act to end them all. He twirls, dervish-style, in transvestite wedding dress, jewelry and full makeup. Hey, it's a tradition.

Romanian violin wizards Taraf de Haidouks (Band of Brigands), who get an affectionate plug from fan Johnny Depp, work miracles with scratchy strings, and Spanish flamenco artist Antonio el Pipa is passion personified. You can see why their tour sold out, fans traveled hundreds of miles for an autograph and concertgoers couldn't resist dancing in the aisles.

In English, Spanish, Romanian, Macedonian and Rajasthani with English subtitles.

Published in The Dallas Morning News: 08.31.07

Tell us what you think

- Everyone's a critic: How would you grade this film?
- Movies blog: The Screening Room: Views, news and nuggets on all things movies
- MoviEmail: Send us your comments, and we will print excerpts of the best each week.

Frequently Asked Questions | Contact Us | Privacy | Terms of Service | Site Map | About Us © 2007, The Dallas Morning News, Inc.